

Antonio Del Negro becomes Chief Product Officer at the myneva group

- Leading European software provider in the social services sector strengthens its leadership team
- New Chief Product Officer with impressive track record in the software industry

Hamburg, January 02, 2024 - Antonio Del Negro (46) will take up the position of Chief Product Officer (CPO) for the myneva group on January 1. He takes over the position from Christophe Nick, who has decided to take on a new challenge outside the company after almost two years with the company. The new CPO Del Negro studied Business Computer Science and comes to myneva from Experis Germany, where he was Practice Leader Enterprise Applications in recent years. With more than 20 years of experience in creating business process applications, he has in-depth knowledge of how to design, implement and bring software solutions to market. In recent years, his focus has been very much on the development of cloud enterprise applications. One focus has been on moving companies from their on-premise solutions to the cloud.

Making the care process as transparent as possible

"In Antonio Del Negro, we have gained a first-class expert in the field of process management and enterprise cloud architectures. He will provide a significant and innovative impact to our focus on the social care ecosystem across all care sectors," says CEO Dieter Weisshaar. "We would like to thank Christophe Nick very much for his contribution to building a central product organization for the myneva Group and wish him every success in his new challenges," Weisshaar continues.

"At myneva, together with my teams, I have the opportunity to make everyday care a little easier and better with every release, with every new feature, with every line of code. This gives us the opportunity to improve the lives of people in need of care, caregivers and their relatives," emphasizes Del Negro. "We will ensure that our software products address the needs and challenges of all stakeholders. The ultimate goal is to make day-to-day care easier for everyone involved and to make the care process transparent," Del Negro continues.

The new Chief Product Officer Del Negro can look back on more than 20 years of successful work in product development, primarily in the SAP environment. Before joining Experis, for example, he spent six years at EASY Software, most recently as Vice President Engineering SAP.
